Dr. Alan Dengiz Among Experts in Award-Winning TV Show

Alan Dengiz, M.D., (Geriatrics Center) was one of three experts appearing on the national healthcare TV series, Second Opinion. He appeared in a December 2011 episode called “Mystery Diagnosis,” which this November was honored with a NETA award (National Educational Telecommunications Association). The award recognizes member-produced excellence in public broadcasting.

The award-winning episode highlights a neurological condition that manifests symptoms similar to Alzheimer’s and Parkinson’s disease. Dr. Dengiz and his colleagues, after hearing the history and symptoms, are able to come up with the correct diagnosis: Normal Pressure Hydrocephalus.

Among NETA’s comments regarding the episode: “Very effective in showing the viewer everything involved in diagnosing and treating patients. The best kind of show. Entertaining and informative.”

Second Opinion airs Fridays at 10 p.m. and Saturdays at 3 p.m. on more than 250 PBS stations across the country. Here is a link to the “Mystery Diagnosis” episode: http://www.secondopinion-tv.org/episode/mystery-diagnosis.
