Twelve Geriatricians newly-certified in Palliative Medicine

In the Division of Geriatric and Palliative Medicine, 12 faculty members have recently gained board certification in Palliative Medicine. This brings the division’s total to 17 faculty members with dual certification in Geriatric Medicine and Palliative Medicine, representing the majority of the division’s clinical faculty.

The division was recently designated as the academic and administrative home for the new Adult Palliative Medicine program. The program was created for adults with chronic disease and those who require end-of-life care. It brings together palliative care specialists from across the health system, to enhance not only clinical care, but also academic research and medical education in the area of palliative medicine.

The newly-certified physicians are:

- Neil Alexander, M.D.
- Kathleen Bickel, M.D.
- Alan Dengiz, M.D.
- Karen Hall, MD., Ph.D.
- Robert Hogikyan, M.D.
- Pearl Lee, M.D.
- Erika Manu, M.D.
- Adam Marks, M.D., M.P.H.
- Ana Montoya, M.D.
- Joseph Nnodim, M.D., Ph.D.
- Neal Persky, M.D., Ph.D.
- Raymond Yung, M.D.

Those who were already certified are:

- Darius Joshi, M.D.
- Lillian Min, M.D.
- Marcos Montagnini, M.D.
- Anjanette Stoltz, M.D.
- Caroline Vitale, M.D.