1. The University of Michigan (UM) is a teaching hospital. The staff and medical students provide patient care. Additionally, students and faculty conduct education and research while the facility serves patients. Staff are always available to answer questions.

2. HIV is a sexually transmitted disease that can be transmitted through unprotected sex. Medical staff should be informed of the patient’s condition. In the case of vaginal and/or oral sexual contact, the patient should be informed of the condition. The medical staff should receive the treatment immediately.

3. We, the University of Michigan and Michigan State University, are required to follow the same rules of payment. We pay for the services based on the patient’s ability to pay. We will be responsible for the payment in full.

4. Advance Directive (Advance Care Directive) is a statement of what the patient wishes to happen in the event of illness. This is a patient’s right to make decisions about life-sustaining treatment. We are responsible for the care of the patient.

5. The University of Michigan is a teaching hospital. Our patients are treated by medical students. We are required to provide care to all patients, regardless of their ability to pay.

6. The safety and security of our patients is our primary concern. Our patients have the right to refuse medical care. We are responsible for the care of the patient.