The Allegiance Health System, based in Jackson, and the University of Michigan Health System have proposed to join together in a new way. Allegiance would become part of U-M. This is only a proposal -- many details and permissions must be worked out before it can go through.

If you’re a U-M patient and you live in the Allegiance service area (Jackson, Hillsdale, Lenawee, Ingham, Calhoun and western Washtenaw counties), you can continue to come to the care location that you prefer.

If the affiliation is finalized, Allegiance and U-M may begin to provide new services closer to your home. They would also work to better coordinate care for patients who receive care from doctors, hospitals and services at both systems. The goal: better care, at the right place & time for you.
