About Ann Arbor

Shopping

Downtown Ann Arbor features eclectic and diverse sidewalk shopping options. Whether you are into antiques, art, fashion or collectibles, you are bound to find what you are looking for.

State and Main streets are home to many small fashion boutiques, vintage and specialty clothing stores, and more well-known retailers such as Urban Outfitters and American Apparel.

A favorite downtown shopping area is the historic Kerrytown district which is home to the Ann Arbor Farmers Market. This open-air market was voted the best place to buy produce by Ann Arbor News readers and features locally grown produce, flowers, shrubs, plants, jams, honey, maple syrup, jellies, baked goods, grains, fruits, eggs, dairy products, homemade wearing apparel, toys, jewelry, home decorations, furniture, dried flowers, pottery and candles.

Treasure Mart - another Kerrytown feature - was an original cornerstone of the downtown shopping center. Since opening its doors for business in 1960, the store has sold a wide range of items on consignment for its members, which now number in the thousands. It has three floors of antiques, collectibles, furniture, jewelry and just about everything else you could think of.

Ann Arbor also offers access to several shopping malls, the closest being Briarwood located off Eisenhower Parkway.
